

Programme in Comparative Media Law and Policy (PCMLP)
Centre for Socio-Legal Studies
University of Oxford

Entrepreneurial Dinner Ladies, Liberated Bytes and Other Hybrids: Purifying the 'Social' and the 'Technical' in UK Economic Policy

Dr Dawn Nafus
University of Essex

Wednesday, 9 June, 1-2p.m.
Florey Room, Wolfson College

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Dr Dawn Nafus is a Senior Research Officer at the Chimera Institute for Socio-Technical Innovation and Research at the University of Essex. She holds a PhD in Social Anthropology from the University of Cambridge. Dr Nafus works in Russia and the UK and has a range of interests surrounding economic anthropology, social change, cultural ideas about time and space, and discourses about progress and technology. Before becoming an anthropologist Dawn was a researcher with the Corporate Executive Board (Washington, DC) specializing in the corporate banking sector.

DIRECTIONS

This seminar will be held in the Florey Room, on Level 4 of Wolfson College on Linton Road in North Oxford. Directions to Wolfson College are available at: <http://www.wolfson.ox.ac.uk/college/location/>. If you are visiting on foot from the city centre, the Wolfson College Minibus departs at 12:30 from in front of Blackwell's and will take you to the front door of the college. The last return bus departs Wolfson at 14:20. Fare is 30p each way (exact change only) and seating is limited.

CONVENOR

Dr Christian Sandvig (christian.sandvig@csls.ox.ac.uk).

Additional details, including an abstract of this talk, are available from our Web site at the address below.

Programme in Comparative Media Law and Policy (PCMLP), Centre for Socio-Legal Studies
Wolfson College, University of Oxford, Oxford OX2 6UD, United Kingdom
Tel: 01865 284220 Fax: 01865 284253 <http://pcmlp.socleg.ox.ac.uk/>